

How do Graduate Students Become Autonomous Learners? A Student-Faculty-Staff Conversation

Where: Center for Teaching, Learning and Technology (Commons Area)

ITDC: Instructional and Technology Development Center

301 South Main

When: Thursday, April 9, 2009

9:30 to 11:00 a.m.

Who: ISU students, instructors, and staff

Dr. Patricia Jarvis will lead the discussion.

“How does learner autonomy change from being an undergraduate to being a graduate student?”

“How can I be a more autonomous learner?”

“How can faculty/staff mentor autonomy in graduate students?”

Let's work together to come up with ideas and practical suggestions to promote our shared goals of increasing learner autonomy and student success.

Refreshments Provided

Sponsored by Cross Chair in the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning

Illinois State University